From the nightclub to the clinic

Out of the night-time and into the day: Ketamine and MDMA as therapies for mental disorders.

Both ketamine and MDMA are old drugs, with apparent new uses. They have similarities in the way they are used recreationally, but they have taken different pathways to consideration as therapies.

Find out the latest research and concerns in using these drugs from the Australian & New Zealand Journal of Psychiatry.

The rise of depression in adolescents

Although the prevalence of depression has increased across all age groups, the increase among adolescents has outpaced that among adults.

Because depression is strongly associated with suicide, increasing rates of depression among adolescents are especially worrisome, given that rates of youth suicide have also been increasing for well over a decade.

This review article looks at the trends in the rise of depression in adolescents, treatments and the future research needed in the latest published research in The New England Journal of Medicine.

The 'Grey Nomad' travelling population and their health

Increasing numbers of baby boomers are retiring and taking to the road in rural and remote Australia, often for extended periods.

This review aims to identify the characteristics of these 'grey nomads' travelling across Australia, their experiences in relation to their health and social needs and their access to health care.

Find out more about their health needs and access in the Australian Journal of Primary Health.
